SPECIAL REPORT

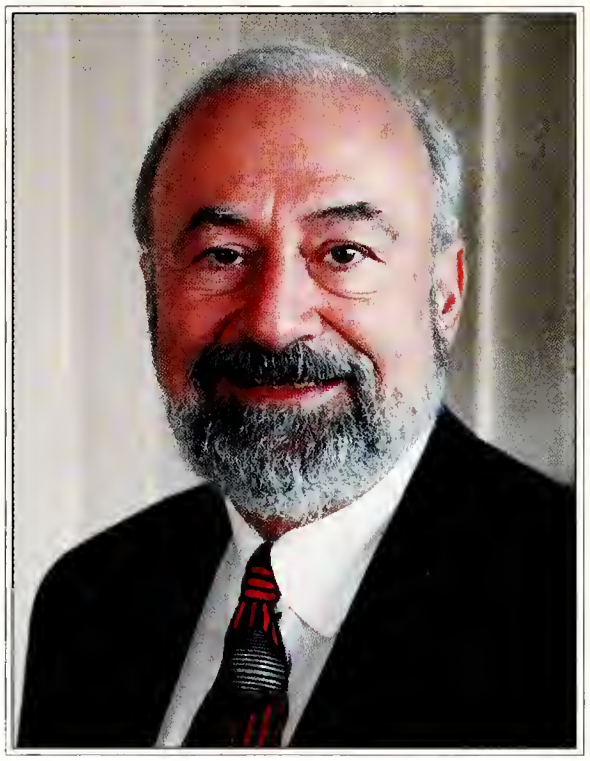
PERSPECTIVE



Being a college president is a job with some tough issues. Even considering that, however, I think it is probably easier these days than being the manager of an investment fund. With the recent volatility of the stock market, it must be very difficult to demonstrate to fund investors that their return has been worth their investment.

During the past year, many hundreds of generous people have made investments in Lenoir-Rhyne College — whether faculty and staff, students and parents, alumni and friends, corporate and foundation donors, or members of the church and the community. Unlike the situation in which some investment fund managers might find themselves, I am proud to tell you that during the 2000-2001 fiscal year, Lenoir-Rhyne College has given you a tremendous return on your investment in us.

The Lenoir-Rhyne community has, with your support, accomplished some impressive things in 2000-2001:

We welcomed a larger, stronger class of new students. Every one of our students and most of our staff and faculty were involved in community service activities, from building Habitat for Humanity homes to tutoring school children and delivering Meals on Wheels. We honored them and community leaders engaged in similar activities at our Community Service Convocation in February.

Our students garnered awards at the North Carolina Student Academy of Science meeting and the Phi Beta Lambda business society regional and national competitions. Our student team was part of the national Model United Nations in New York.

We completed the Living-Learning Center, an apartment-style student residence that will house 128 students and a faculty family in a self-governed, educationally oriented environment. This building's architecture, which reflects the Rhyne Building in appearance, is winning kudos both on- and off-campus.

We began construction of the 47,000-square-foot McCrorie Center, which will house our health-related majors of nursing, occupational therapy and sports medicine/athletic training; our football program; student health services and a student exercise facility. Lenoir-Rhyne was honored by a $600,000 challenge grant from the Kresge Foundation to help us raise the final $1.9 million of this $9.8 million project.

We held the first of three summers of academies supported by a grant from the Burroughs Wellcome Fund to help encourage and prepare ethnic minority high school students to pursue careers in the sciences and mathematics.

Our men's soccer, baseball and softball teams won their conference tournaments. Our baseball team won the conference championship and a bid to the NCAA II Tournament. The team ended in 24th place in the final NCAA II Collegiate Baseball Top 30 poll. Three of our student athletes were named conference players of the year in their sports, and basketball standout Daniel Willis was named South Atlantic Conference Student Athlete of the Year. The Lenoir-Rhyne College athletic training staff, led by Michael McGee, was chosen as the best athletic training staff in the South Atlantic Conference.

A large number of our faculty published research and reviews in their fields. Among them, Dr. Shirley B. Huffman in our counseling program won the 2001 CSI Outstanding Research Award, and Dr. Karen Dill received international media coverage for her groundbreaking research on the role of video games in promoting aggressive behavior.

In partnership with Catawba Valley Community College and Appalachian State University, Lenoir-Rhyne developed a proposal for a Hickory Higher Education Learning Center to respond to workforce education needs and provide a site for special continuing education opportunities.

Whatever our accomplishments, including the many that could not be listed, the most important has been that we have accomplished our mission of educating students as whole persons for lives of leadership and service. Your investment in this College was, in fact, your investment in their lives and futures. Thank you for making this investment. We have depended upon you, and you have not let us down.

On The Cover

The Lenoir-Rhyne College School of Business celebrates its 100th anniversary this year. Inside this issue is a special report on the School of Business and other L-R programs that benefit the business community. The cover photos show a business class from the 1920s and the faculty and staff of the current School of Business. Current business school employees are (left to right): Dr. Robert Simmons, Dr. Jerald Gober (chair of the Business School), Dr. Richard Carmichael, Professor Sarah Wallace, Dr. Kristine Parsons, Pam Deal (administrative assistant), Professor Richard Greene, Dr. Dale King, Dr. Wayne King and Professor Patty Wike. Not pictured is Dr. Ted Reingold.

Lenoir-Rhyne College is an institution sanctioned by the North Carolina Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. It provides programs in undergraduate, graduate and continuing study that are committed to the liberal arts and sciences as a basis for professional studies, various careers and as guidance for a purposeful life. The College strives for excellence by providing rigorous programs designed to challenge the qualified and motivated student.

The primary concern of Lenoir-Rhyne College is the development of the whole person. The College seeks to liberate mind and spirit, clarify personal faith, foster physical wholeness, build a sense of community, and promote responsible leadership for service in the world.

Lenoir-Rhyne is a community of learning dedicated to the ongoing task of evaluating and engaging the orts and sciences from mony perspectives. The College holds the conviction that wholeness of personality, true vocation and the most useful service to God and the world are best discerned from within the perspective of Christian faith.

Freshmen participated in a variety of community service projects as part of Prologue, a freshman orientation program.

Brandes gives presentation

Dr. Rand Brandes, Martin Luther Stevens professor of English, was a guest speaker at the W.B. Yeats International Summer School in Sligo, Ireland, July 28-Aug. 10. He spoke on the topic "Yeats and Ted Hughes." Also participating in the program were professors from Oxford, Cambridge and Harvard universities.

Women's basketball coach hired

Karen Barefoot was hired as the school's head women's basketball coach. She served the past six seasons as the head women's basketball coach at The Apprentice School located in Newport News, Va. She guided the Lady Builders to their best season in the six-year history of the program in 2000-01 as they went 24-3 en route to setting 44 school records and winning the National Small College Athletic Association (NSCAA) national title. In each of the six seasons, the wins increased for the Lady Builders as Barefoot finished with a 102-42 record. She was named the NSCAA Coach of the Year the last two seasons.

Cheek returns from Armenia

Dr. John Cheek, associate professor of music, spent four months teaching American piano music to students at the Yerevan State Conservatory in Yerevan, Armenia. Cheek taught 20th century American concert music and also gave several performances in the country. His trip was financed through a Fulbright Scholarship.

Athletic training staff tops in SAC

The Lenoir-Rhyne College athletic training staff, led by Michael McGee, director of sports medicine/head athletic trainer, has been chosen as the best athletic training staff in the South Atlantic Conference for the 2000-01 school year.

The award is voted on by the head athletic trainer at each of the eight schools in the South Atlantic Conference. The award is sponsored by Sports Health, a division of School Health Corp. McGee is entering his ninth year as the Bears' director of sports medicine and his seventh year as the head athletic trainer. He is certified by the National Athletic Trainers Association and is responsible for the coordination of both academic and athletic components of the sports medicine/athletic training program. He also serves as an assistant professor of Healthful Living/Sports Studies .

The Bears also had three associate athletic trainers — Sue Scaffidi, Robert "B.C." Charles-Liscombe and Jessica Benton — on their staff last year.

Nursing alumni gather

Nursing alumni returned to the College on Sept. 15 for a record reunion marking the 40th anniversary of the program. Participants visited Highland Hall and were briefed on plans for the McCrorie Center. This is the last year the nursing program will be located in Highland Hall. Next year, it will move to the McCrorie Center. The nurses were treated to a luncheon, compliments of Broughton Hospital Foundation, Catawba Memorial Hospital, Frye Regional Medical Center and Grace Hospital.

Cross country coach hired

Jason Stewart has been named head coach of the men's and women's cross country programs. He has been the head cross country/track and field coach at Fred T. Foard High School in Newton, N.C. Stewart, who will still teach math at Fred T. Foard, has led the Tigers to conference championships in cross country (1996, 1999) and track and field (1997, 2000). Stewart has been named the Coach of the Year in the Western Foothills Conference four times (1996, 1997, 1999, 2000).

Check out L-R's Web site at www.lrc.edu/athletics/athletics.html for the latest information on all of the College's intercollegiate teams.

Work is progressing on the McCrorie Center. The College is working hard to earn the Kresge Foundation Challenge Grant of $600,000. To do so, the College must raise $1.9 million by May 31, 2002. See current photos of the building at www.lrc.edu.

Hospitals donate to McCrorie Center

Two Hickory hospitals have given leadership gifts to help with the construction of the new McCrorie Center.

The building's health library will be named in honor of Frye Regional Medical Center in recognition of a $50,000 donation by Frye Regional Medical Center/Tenet Foundation. The Student Health Center lobby, located in the McCrorie Center, will be named in honor of Catawba Memorial Hospital in recognition of its $25,000 gift.

The McCrorie Center, which is now under construction on the L-R campus, will connect to the existing Moretz Gymnasium. The 47,000-square-foot facility will be home to Lenoir-Rhyne's allied health departments: nursing, occupational therapy and sports medicine. In addition, the bottom floor will house expanded locker, equipment, training and office areas for L-R's football and sports medicine programs.

The hospitals' donations will also be used to help meet the $600,000 Kresge Foundation challenge grant. This is an all-or-nothing grant, requiring the college to raise the entire project cost of $9.8 million by May 31, 2002.

Lenoir-Rhyne encourages all friends and alumni to participate in this exciting project, which will provide a much-needed facility. Pictures of the McCrorie Center construction project may be viewed on the College's Web site at www.lrc.edu.

For information about the McCrorie Center and the Kresge Foundation challenge grant, contact L-R's Office of Institutional Advancement at (828) 328-7360 or lemons@lrc.edu. ■

Skinner Endowment to support sacred music, religion programs

The Rev. Harold G. and Nancy Foil Skinner Endowment Fund has been established for the purpose of supporting the sacred music and religion programs of the College. The endowment, established by Harold and Nancy Skinner of Hickory, will be funded from the proceeds of an insurance contract that names the College as the primary beneficiary.

Harold Skinner '52 is a retired Lutheran pastor, having served parishes in Wyoming, Colorado, South Carolina and North Carolina. Nancy Skinner '52 is a retired classroom teacher. They have served as members of the L-R Alumni Association Board of Directors and as national co-chairs of the L-R Annual Fund in 1999-2000. The Skinners are current class agents of their class. First preference for use of the endowment funds will be to support the operating expenses of the sacred music program. Second preference will be to support the expenses of the religion program. ■

Additional gifts may be made to existing endowments. For information on how to establish an endowment or add to an existing one, contact L-R's Office of Institutional Advancement at (828) 328-7336, or eckardv@lrc.edu.

Burroughs Wellcome Fund grant encourages study of science and math

Lenoir-Rhyne College has received a $179,994 grant from the Burroughs Wellcome Fund's Student Science Enrichment Program. The grant will fund a three-year program, Carolina Institute for the Multicultural Approach to Science.

The CIMAS program at L-R is designed to increase the number of minority students who pursue careers in these fields. Each year, 20 rising ninth- and 10th-grade minority students will be selected to attend a Summer Academy and fall workshops.

The first CIMAS Summer Academy was held this July. The students participated in a number of hands-on science activities. They used computers to solve real-life problems, conducted environmental research on a patch of kudzu growing on campus, and studied chemistry and physics by taking and developing photographs. They also created personal Web pages to showcase their research.

100 years of educating business Leaders

This year, the School of Business at Lenoir-Rhyne College celebrates its 100th anniversary. It was the first department to have a separate identity at Lenoir College, which was founded 110 years ago and would later become Lenoir-Rhyne College.

A photograph in "Fair Star," the history of Lenoir-Rhyne, shows an early business class. Young women in ankle-length dresses and high-collared blouses, and young men in dark suits and ties are stiffly arranged. Some of the students hold ledger books while others are near manual typewriters. According to the caption, the class motto was "Work makes life sweet."

A century later, much has changed. The department has grown into a School of Business, where students can major in accounting, business administration, business education or international business. Advancements in technology, such as the calculator and personal computer, have lightened the chores of the past while helping to organize vast amounts of information. The school continues to respond to the reality of the global market by establishing a major in international business. The School of Business is a candidate for accreditation by the Association of Collegiate Business Schools and Programs.

A master's of business administration degree has been added, focusing on the needs of working adults. In addition, a series of Executive Business Seminars offer specific information for busy executives.

Today, Lenoir-Rhyne's Business Council links businesses in the area with the academic expertise on campus. The Broyhill Institute for Business Leadership sponsors a variety of activities. Created by a grant from the Broyhill Foundation in Lenoir, N.C., the institute is designed to:

1. Encourage greater understanding of the workings of the American economic system, the values of private enterprise, and business leadership in a free society.

2. Develop the business, economic and leadership skills of future and current business persons.

3. Stimulate values-centered study of business leadership and economic issues.

To accomplish these purposes, the institute engages in a variety of activities directed at both the College and the community. It supports forums, lectures and seminars for the College and surrounding area. It also sponsors the Broyhill Leadership Mentor Program, which provides individual and group activities designed to develop and strengthen the leadership skills and attitudes of an invited group of L-R sophomores. The institute also supports faculty and student participation in a variety of conferences and seminars.

One of the ways business students learn about the business world is through Phi Beta Lambda, the business organization on campus. Advised by Dr. Robert Simmons and Professor Sarah Wallace, the organization participates in statewide and national competition. Students are challenged to test their skills in areas ranging from accounting and business education to public speaking. The Lenoir-Rhyne College chapter of this organization has consistently ranked high in these events, even when competing against much larger chapters at other colleges.

The School of Business has instituted a Professor for a Day program, in which College alumni return to campus to share their experiences with students. An Executive Business Speaker Series has also begun. Patricia Pollack of the Metrolina Entrepreneurial Council launched this series of talks by regionally and nationally recognized business leaders. Executive Business Luncheons for mentors and human resource directors will continue to establish relationships with the local business community.

An anniversary dinner in recognition of the School of Business' centennial is planned for Oct. 27 at Rock Barn Club of Golf. For details about this event, contact Dr. Dale King at (828) 328-7294.

The greatest achievement of the School of Business has been its graduates, who have pursued successful careers as bankers, accountants, entrepreneurs and business executives. Built upon Lenoir-Rhyne's core values, the school stands poised to continue its leadership into the 21st century. ◘

Many changes have taken place over 100 years as the Lenoir-Rhyne Business Department grew into the School of Business. Here are a few photo memories from the past. Clockwise, starting from the upper left corner, are:

Special Report

A degree they could take to the bank

Lenoir-Rhyne College has prepared its students for leadership positions in many careers. Of special note is the role it has played in shaping leaders in the banking industry.

Many are well-known community leaders who are now retired following successful careers. They include Wilbert Seabock '50, former president of First Savings Bank of Hickory and a member of the L-R Board of Trustees; Mickey Dry '61, retired executive vice president with Wachovia Corp. and a member of the L-R Board of Trustees; David Hunsucker '48, former president and CEO of Peoples Bank; and Luther Bolick '59, retired vice chairman of Southern National Corp. and a member of the L-R Alumni Board.

Others are still active in their profession. Although some did not plan a career in banking, they all agree on one thing: their experience at Lenoir-Rhyne played a key role in preparing them for future leadership. In this article, we take a look at a few of these successful alumni and how their careers developed.

Pete Burr '58

Pete Burr '58 came to Lenoir-Rhyne at the urging of his mother, who hoped her son would become a Lutheran minister. "When I was there, probably 50 percent of the males were pre-theological students," he explained.

By the time he graduated, Burr felt sure he wasn't called to be a minister. He was offered two jobs. One was sweeping floors at Klopman Mills as part of a long-range training program. The other was a trainee position with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., the federal agency that regulates banks. He took the FDIC job in 1958 and worked for the agency until he retired in 1988. He is now president of Financial Solutions in Atlanta, a bank consulting firm.

While with the FDIC, he worked in many locations along the Eastern Seaboard. He first had assignments in North Carolina, Virginia and Washington, D.C. From 1976 to 1978, he was regional director in Boston, when he supervised bank examiners throughout New England. From 1980 to 1988, he was regional director of the FDIC's Southeast Region, which covered West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida.

He has worked with insolvent banks throughout the country, helping protect the depositors. Burr explained that the FDIC was created as a result of the bank failures of the 1930s. "The purpose of the FDIC was to protect people who had money in banks who couldn't help themselves," he said. It now insures all banks in the country and steps in when a bank fails. At that time, the FDIC becomes the receiver, helping to arrange a purchase by a stronger bank and/or paying off depositors up to the insured limit. All bank customers are now insured for deposits up to $100,000.

Since retiring, Burr has been asked to help some foreign banks. In 1994-1995, he was an advisor to Lithuania and Latvia, two former Soviet Union republics, as they tried to establish independent banking systems. The problem was that they had no banking tradition. "The whole Russian system was not a banking system at all," he said. "There were no private banks, but merely branches of the centralized government that loaned money based on government policy. After the Communists fell from power, there was an attempt to start a private banking system, but it faced many problems, including widespread corruption."

In the United States, bank regulation has changed dramatically in recent years, with banks now allowed to offer brokerage and other financial services that were once prohibited. Regulators are also approving many bank mergers that would not have been approved in the past. "The bigger you are, the more things you can do," he said about the trend toward mega-banks. However, he said, "I think you're going to always have community banks," explaining that most customers want a bank that knows them by name.

Burr, who served as L-R Alumni Association president last year, said he looks back fondly on his years at the College. "Lenoir-Rhyne picked me," he said. "I didn't pick it," explaining that he wasn't sure he would attend the College at first, but really enjoyed his experience once he arrived. He believes L-R still offers a friendly, inviting atmosphere where students feel part of a community.

Charles Snipes '58

Charles Snipes '58, president and CEO of Bank of Granite, didn't plan to be a banker. After graduating from high school in Lincolnton, he worked for Belk department store for a year. Then he joined the Army where he served for three years. During that time, the GI Bill for Korean War veterans was announced.

That development made Snipes decide to go to college when he got out of the service. In 1955, he enrolled at Lenoir-Rhyne. He wasn't at all sure what career he would enter.

"Professors (George) McCreary and (Ray) Strunk forced me into banking against my wishes," he said with a chuckle. They were two of his business professors, and they suggested rather strongly that he enter the management training program of First National Bank of Catawba County. "I absolutely did not want to be a banker," Snipes recalled.

He asked his professors why they thought he should become a banker, and they said they thought he was well suited to the profession and would be successful. At that point, he agreed. "They've always been smarter than I am!" he said with a laugh. After a few months at the bank, he agreed that he liked banking. He continued at First National Bank for several years, advancing to senior vice president and city executive in 1970. In 1981, First National merged with First Union National Bank, at which time Snipes became senior vice president of First Union. In July 1982, he received another promotion, to regional executive of First Union.

Lenoir-Rhyne President Dr. Ryan LaHurd met with alumnus Barry Hastings in his office at Northern Trust Corp. in the Chicago Loop recently and had the chance to interview him about his career and the role Lenoir-Rhyne played in his personal development.

Being in a discussion with Barry Hastings '69 about his approach to mentoring younger bankers feels a bit like listening to a tape outlining the main aspects of leadership. This is as true about the traits he himself exhibits as about what he tries to teach those he mentors. Hastings became president and chief operating officer of Chicago-based Northern Trust Corp., one of the nation's most highly regarded banking firms, in 1995.

What marks the road from Lenoir-Rhyne College to leadership of a publicly traded multi-bank holding company with assets at the end of 2000 totaling more than $36 billion and trust assets under administration totaling $1.7 trillion? Hastings has an insightful sense of the complexity of both his career development and his self-development.

"One needs a sense of drive, an edge and a passion to achieve," Hastings said. "When these things wane, you have a drop in achievement."

He explained: "I have been fortunate to be at the right place at the right time, and when that occurred, I made sure to take advantage of the opportunities put before me." He credits his willingness to take risks for new opportunities to a leader who acted as a mentor to him. "I was comfortable in my role at the time and did not want to make a move. This individual forced me to take a chance, and that made a real difference in my career and life."

As his career has matured, Hastings notes that his motivation has changed. For the first 20 years, moving up in the corporation was most important to him. "Now my real interest is in mentoring the younger staff who are on their way up. Mentoring is an extraordinarily important tool for leadership, both for the leader and the person aspiring to leadership," Hastings believes. "My goal is to leave this organization in great hands and to have employees and shareholders feel fulfilled and rewarded."

Asked about his experiences at Lenoir-Rhyne, like so many alumni in his field, Hastings credits Professors Bud Brown and Ray Strunk with making the difference in his education. "For Professor Strunk, education was a very disciplined process," he said. "I appreciate it today much more than I did then.

"My college years were very happy ones, and I have some life-long friendships, notably Al '69 and Marilyn '70 Hoke, as well as Dick Smith '68," Hastings reminisced. "My education was very robust. I got all the classroom and life experiences I needed to succeed, especially a good basis in business and communication skills."

Further assessing his education, Hasting notes that most of the senior leaders he deals with on a daily basis are Ivy League graduates. "But the fact is," he said smiling, "I can compete with them on every level. There were no inadequacies in my education at Lenoir-Rhyne." Hastings is a member of the President's Society at L-R.

Having heard for the first time that Lenoir-Rhyne now offers an MBA degree, Hastings was pleased to hear of its strong ethics component. "In our world, the area of gray in decision-making has grown. Business people need to spend more time considering the process of how they make decisions with ethics and values involved," he said. "In the end, integrity always wins!" ■

Note: Donors of $1,000 and up to the PEF are recognized in the Bears Club on page 41.

The Golden Bears

The Golden Bears, an organization established in 1996 to provide service, fellowship and travel opportunities for senior alumni, is comprised of Lenoir-Rhyne College alumni who have celebrated their 50th class reunion. This group meets on Alumni Weekend each April when the 50-year reunion class is formally inducted into the group. In 2000-2001, the Golden Bears achieved 44% participation in the Annual Fund and ranked in the top 10 in class participation.

Lenoir-Rhyne College Points of Pride

- Dr. Vicki Schell was named associate editor of the journal Focus on Learning Problems in Mathematics.
- The College established a new minor in actuarial science.
- Dr. Karen Dill received attention from the international news media for her research on violence and video games. After her work was referred to as the best research to date on video game violence by the National Institute on Media and the Family, she was interviewed by news organizations ranging from CNN in the United States to a television series for parents in Japan. She also testified before a Congressional hearing and published several articles in academic journals.

A new fountain has been built on the lawn in front of the Admissions Building. It is the senior gift from the Class of 2001. The fountain will be dedicated at 9 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 27, Homecoming day.

Business Council

Membership in the Lenoir-Rhyne Business Council is comprised of businesses, corporations and foundations that provide unrestricted leadership gifts of $1,000 or more unrestricted each year to the Annual Fund. Lenoir-Rhyne's Business Council was established in 1983 to promote a better understanding of the College and its programs within the busi-ness community, to provide unique learning opportunities for students through internships, and to support the College's giving programs.

Generating nearly one-third of the College's unrestricted Annual Fund, the Business Council raised $199,100 from a record 101 members in 2000-2001.

We are thankful for the annual commitment and support of the Business Council and the dynamic leadership of its Board during the 2000-2001 campaign.

Matching Gifts

Many alumni, friends and parents maximized their support of Lenoir-Rhyne in 2000-2001 by securing matching gifts from employers totaling more than $59,336. These commitments on the part of both the donors and matching organizations are appreciated. More than 1,000 employers currently provide matching gifts on behalf of their employees and, in some cases, their retirees, stockholders and board members.

We recognize that these funds are an additional way in which alumni and friends support the College. Therefore, matching gifts are included with an individual's total giving when considering recognition in our gift clubs.

North Carolina Independent Colleges and Universities Fund

The North Carolina Independent Colleges and Universities organization raises funds for 28 independent colleges and universities in North Carolina. North Carolina is one of only 16 states that raises more than $1 million annually. The board, which solicits funds, is comprised of both college presidents and corporate executives. Lenoir-Rhyne is grateful to all the supporters, especially those in red type who designated gifts for Lenoir-Rhyne College.

Lenoir-Rhyne College Endowment Guidelines

- Named funds for any approved purpose may be established at Lenoir-Rhyne College with a minimum gift of $25,000. An endowment agreement is signed by the donor and the president of the College.
- The amount of revenue earned by a named fund is determined by the overall earnings of the College's pooled funds.
- Normally, earnings are awarded annually as they accrue in accordance with the endowment agreement once the fund reaches the minimum level.
- Additional gifts may be added to the fund at any time through current or deferred gifts such as will provisions, by the donor or by other friends and family.
- Recipients for scholarship funds are selected by the Office of Financial Aid using the government-approved financial aid information. Academic departments and other resources may be used, as appropriate, in the selection process.
- The named fund will be listed in a College publication.
- The recommended time frame for the completion of funding the $25,000 minimum is three to five years. Funds that are not raised to the $25,000 level within the agreed upon time frame become part of the College's general endowment.
- The College provides annual reports to donors of fund performance and/or current status.

Currently, named funds are available as follows:

Scholarships

Full tuition, room and board	$350,000
Full Tuition	250,000
Named fund minimum	25,000

Faculty Enrichment

Distinguished Chair	$1,500,000
Endowed Full Professorships	1,000,000
Faculty Professional Development Fund	250,000

Other Endowed Funds

Named Fund Minimum	$25,000

For more information or to make a gift to an endowed fund, please contact Vickie Eckard, director of development operations, at eckardv@lrc.edu or (828) 328-7336.

Lenoir-Rhyne College Points of Pride

• L-R received a grant from the Burroughs Wellcome Fund to encourage talented minority students to pursue careers in mathematics or science. The three-year grant will enable L-R to offer a summer enrichment camp to rising 9th and 10th grade students. Participants and their parents will also attend fall seminars, where they will be able to meet with prominent scientists.

• Dr. Wayne Powell, vice president and dean for academic affairs, was the keynote speaker at the National Conference of Graduate and Professional Students and the N.C. Council of Graduate Schools. Both times, he addressed models for building diversity programs at colleges and universities.

• The Registrar's Office redesigned the enrollment process to minimize the time invested by students and to maximize the contact with advisors.

• The College hosted its first Open House for deaf and hard of hearing high school students.

• The College created and developed the faculty-in-residence concept. Drs. Karen and Jody Dill will be the first faculty couple to live in a student residence hall under this concept.

Kresge Foundation Challenge Grant

The Kresge Foundation has given Lenoir-Rhyne College a challenge grant of $600,000 for the McCrorie Center. This challenge grant is an all-or-nothing grant, which requires the College to raise the entire project cost of The McCrorie Center by May 31, 2002. The College still needs to raise $1.9 million to meet this challenge. We encourage all friends and alumni of the College to participate in this important project. For more information, contact the L-R Office of Institutional Advancement at (828) 328-7360 or lemons@lrc.edu.

Lenoir-Rhyne College Points of Pride

- Building Community from Diversity, a program to encourage dialogue and study about issues of cultural diversity in the Unifour, received a grant of $60,000 from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation.
- The College offered Executive Business Seminars as an alternative to MBA foundation requirements.
- A cooperative arrangement was reached between the SBTDC and the College to offer NexLevel workshops.
- The College's Summer Youth Enrichment Program was expanded to two sessions: a morning program for academically gifted students and an afternoon program for all students.

President of Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond to speak at Lenoir-Rhyne

Alfred Broaddus Jr., president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, will speak at the Business Council's Fall Forum Oct. 16.

He will be in Hickory to attend the Board of Directors' meeting of the Charlotte Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. Lenoir-Rhyne will play host to this meeting on the morning of Oct. 16.

After the meeting, the board of directors will join Business Council members at the Holiday Inn Select for the annual Fall Forum luncheon.

Broaddus is a native of Richmond, Va. He received his B.A. degree from Washington and Lee University, where he was elected to Omicron Delta Kappa and Phi Beta Kappa. Following graduation, he studied in France under a Fulbright Fellowship and received a graduate degree from the Center for Advanced European Studies of the University of Strasbourg.

After military service, he received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in economics from Indiana University. He was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree from Washington and Lee in 1993 and a Distinguished Alumnus Award from Indiana University in 1996.

He joined the bank's research staff as an economist in 1970, was named assistant vice president in 1972, vice president in 1975, and senior vice president and director of research in 1985. He was promoted to his present position on Jan. 1, 1993.

In addition to his responsibilities at the Richmond bank, Broaddus serves every third year as a member of the Federal Open Market Committee of the Federal Reserve System. He serves as a voting member this year.

Reservations for the noon luncheon are available for $25 each. To make your reservations, please contact Marcia Johnston at (828) 328-7108 by Oct. 12. ■

A few months later, he left First Union and joined the Bank of Granite as executive vice president. "I'd been a community banker too long," he said about his reason for the change. "I was going to have a really nice position at First Union, but I wouldn't get to do what I wanted — work with customers."

Snipes has maintained that hometown approach to banking throughout his career. "I still work with a lot of customers," he said. "My door's always open."

He said he has also enjoyed the opportunity to be actively involved in the civic life of the Hickory area. Over the years, he has served on the boards of numerous local organizations. He currently serves on 11 such boards, including the Member Advisory Board of the Piedmont Boy Scout Council, Member Advisory Board of Frye Regional Medical Center, Member Board of Sipe's Orchard Home and the N.C. Community Foundation. Over the years, he has served on almost every Lenoir-Rhyne College board and is now beginning his 16th year on the L-R Board of Trustees. He is also a charter member of the President's Society at Lenoir-Rhyne.

"I owe Lenoir-Rhyne a lot," he said modestly. "I was not a scholar in high school, so I was kind of surprised I was able to get into Lenoir-Rhyne." Shortly after he enrolled, Dean Edwin Setzler came to one of his classes and said he wanted to speak with Snipes after class. The freshman was intimidated and wondered if he were in some sort of trouble. However, the dean said he had reviewed Snipes' entrance test scores. "I want you to know we're expecting great things from you," he told the student. Snipes was so inspired that he worked extra hard and graduated seventh in his class.

Snipes recalled another unusual college experience. His last semester in college, he had to take a class from Dr. H.R. Greenholt, a history professor. Greenholt was well known on campus for his practice of never giving tests during the semester and then giving all students a "C" in the course. On the last day of class, Greenholt passed out a final exam with only one question: "What grade do you deserve in this class and why?" Snipes answered that he deserved a "B" because he had made no grade lower than a "B" during his college years, and because he had attended all classes, paid attention and read the homework assignments. Greenholt gave him a "B-," the highest grade in the class.

In talking with Snipes it is obvious that Lenoir-Rhyne still holds a special place in his heart. As he put it: "I owe Lenoir-Rhyne so much. In bankers' terms, I know I can't pay back the principal. I'm just trying to keep the interest current."

Bill Fenimore '65

Bill Fenimore '65 spent more than 25 years as a conventional banker. However, in the last decade, his career has taken a turn onto the fast lane of the Information Superhighway.

Perhaps his adventurous streak was evidenced when he decided to enroll at Lenoir-Rhyne College, sight unseen. Fenimore was originally from Philadelphia and learned about Lenoir-Rhyne from his father, who was a high school guidance counselor. "I thought I'd try something different," he explained.

He enjoyed his time at Lenoir-Rhyne and was especially influenced by Bud Brown, an economics professor and adviser of the debate team. "He was a legend and had an impact on a lot of people," Fenimore recalled. Brown befriended a number of students, sometimes inviting them out to his home for Sunday dinner or for a round of golf.

After graduation, Fenimore returned to Philadelphia, where he got a job at Philadelphia National Bank. In 1969, he earned a master of business administration degree in finance from Drexel University.

For more than 20 years, he rose through the ranks at Philadelphia National Bank, which later became CoreStates Financial Corp. From 1989 to 1994, he served as executive vice president of the CoreStates Management Committee. His responsibilities there included corporate strategic planning and development, corporate communications, investor relations and third-party transaction business.

In 1994, he joined Meridian Bancorp of Reading, Pa., as group executive vice president and chief technology and strategic planning officer. While there, he was heavily involved in technology and operations of the $18 billion financial institution.

His next step into the new world of Internet banking was a bold one. From 1996 through 1999, he served as chief executive officer of Integrion Financial Network. Fenimore explained that Integrion was created by 16 large financial institutions, VISA and IBM. The purpose of the new company was to build and operate a common Internet technology infrastructure that could serve the e-commerce needs of the member banks.

Integrion was created to challenge Microsoft and Intuit, who were trying to do much the same thing. The Microsoft partnership was trying to establish, and thus control, the technical standards for Internet banking. If Microsoft had succeeded, it could have controlled the Internet banking business in much the same way that its Windows program dominates desktop computing.

However, the banking coalition succeeded in establishing its own set of standards. By mid-2000, Integrion was the country's largest Internet banking provider. But soon afterward, the Integrion owners decided to change directions. As the large banks became more experienced in e-commerce, they left the alliance to manage their own technology. Nevertheless, Fenimore looks back on the experience as a high point in his career.

Although Fenimore left Integrion, he did not abandon the new banking technology. In January 2000, he established Fenimore and Associates, his own company that helps financial institutions with technology planning and related services. As the new century gets under way, Fenimore said he is still bullish on the future of the Internet and e-commerce. One way he participates in this new world is by serving on the board of a venture capital firm and through membership on technology company boards.

Broyhill Institute for Leadership, L-R Honors Program sponsor new international scholarship program

Ten students at Lenoir-Rhyne College will have the opportunity this spring to travel to Europe and develop leadership skills, thanks to the Broyhill Institute for Business Leadership.

The students will be selected from those participating in the College's Honors Program, according to Dr. Rand Brandes, Honors Program director. Entering freshmen are selected for the L-R Honors Program based on high school grades, SAT scores and other criteria. They are eligible to take special, seminar-like classes that are student-centered and encourage individual and group learning through close interaction with their professors.

The Honors Program offers social, recreational and cultural activities. Honors students also have the opportunity to develop their leadership skills by serving on the Student Honors Council and other Honors committees.

Students selected for the Honors Program are eligible for a number of scholarships at Lenoir-Rhyne. After graduation, many receive prestigious fellowships to continue their education in graduate school.

This year, the Broyhill Institute for Business Leadership Program will partner with the Honors Program to launch the Broyhill International Honors Leadership Program. Selected Honors students will receive free airfare to Europe and special instruction in cultural interaction and leadership skills.

"This is an exciting new addition to the Honors Program that is a part of the College's overall goal to help students be successful in the global arena," Brandes said.

The students chosen for this opportunity will first take a course in cultural awareness and global politics at Lenoir-Rhyne. During spring break, they will travel to Europe with Professor William Mauney, chair of the Broyhill Institute. The students will visit London, Amsterdam and Paris, where they will experience first-hand what it is like to live and work in a foreign country.

"We hope this will be an introduction to international travel and global interaction," Brandes said. "The Broyhill International Honors Leadership Program complements the College's Honors Program philosophy, which seeks to challenge the students in ways that will help them be successful in the new millennium." ■

Lenoir-Rhyne College has a master of business administration degree to meet the needs of working professionals in the Hickory area.

The MBA program at Lenoir-Rhyne has a managerial emphasis focusing on creative problem-solving in the business world. In keeping with the College's identity as a Christian institution, the MBA program emphasizes the importance of ethical decision-making. The College believes that quality decision-making requires that managers consider what is good and right for all stakeholders, and that managers base their actions on a well-thought-out set of principles.

Members of the MBA faculty have outstanding credentials including advanced degrees and broad business experience. The MBA program consists of 36 semester hours, which are taught in the evenings to accommodate the schedules of working professionals. The course requirements may be completed in 24 months, although students may take as long as six years to earn a degree.

Admission to the MBA program is based upon several factors, including academic achievement, the applicant's score on the Graduate Management Aptitude Test, professional work experience and completion of MBA foundations coursework. Students who have non-business undergraduate degrees may partially fulfill the foundations coursework requirement by participating in a series of Executive Business Seminars focusing on accounting, finance, marketing and management.

For more information about the Executive Business Seminars or the MBA program, contact the Graduate School by phone at (828) 328-7275, or by e-mail at graduate@lrc.edu. ■ resources officer at Citizens Financial Group, one of the 20 largest banks in the United States. D'Arcy graduated with an English degree, but nevertheless believes that her years at Lenoir-Rhyne prepared her for a successful banking career. "I was a terrible student," she admitted. "The things they gave me at Lenoir-Rhyne were the ability to think and question and speak on my feet." Those skills served her well.

After graduation, she started at Wachovia Bank in Charlotte as a teller. However, it didn't take her long to identify and seize the opportunities available to her. She soon became a retail banker and then a relief manager, filling in for branch managers when they had to be out of the office. In 1971, she got her first big break when the personnel officer for the Charlotte region married and left the bank. D'Arcy was asked to take that job. She accepted and stayed with it for four years.

She relocated to Winston-Salem to be personnel director and then regional sales manager of a Wachovia subsidiary. From that she moved into a corporate role, first as chief recruiter and then as head of all recruiting for Wachovia, system-wide. She married Jack D'Arcy and relocated to Washington, D.C., where she formed her own consulting company specializing in executive recruiting. Then, when her husband accepted a position with Smith Barney in Winston-Salem, N.C., she returned to Wachovia in corporate banking just in time for their acquisition of The First National Bank of Atlanta. For the next six years, she split her time between Winston-Salem and Atlanta.

In 1990, when her husband was transferred back to Washington, D.C., she became senior vice president and director of human resources for Riggs Bank, an international bank headquartered in Washington, D.C., with offices in London, Hong Kong, Paris, Geneva and Gibraltar. D'Arcy said she loved Washington and the time she was there.

In 1996, she was recruited by Citizens Financial Group, the U.S. subsidiary of The Royal Bank of Scotland, one of the 10 largest banking organizations in the world. She now is one of a six-member Executive Management Committee reporting directly to the chairman of Citizens Financial Group. She has been busy since her bank recently acquired all of the retail and business banking and some of the middle market lending activities of Mellon Bank. This acquisition has boosted Citizens' assets to $50 billion. Her bank now has a total of 12,500 employees in Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

D'Arcy said she learned the banking business as she went along. She added that she was fortunate to have had several good mentors. She also graduated from The Young Executive Institute at UNC's Kenan-Flagler Business School. "I would consider myself a banker first and an H.R. professional second," she said.

She believes her experiences with several campus groups at L-R helped develop the leadership skills that have been the basis of her business success.

She also developed lifelong friendships. "Several of my closest friends at Lenoir-Rhyne are still my friends today," she said, adding that she still keeps in touch with her college roommate and is the godmother of her roommate's children.

"Lenoir-Rhyne gave me an excellent liberal arts education," she said. "I also had a lot of fun. They were just great people."

Over the years, she has put her leadership skills to work, not only in banking, but also in the community. While in North Carolina, she was on the advisory board of UNC-CH, and was also heavily involved with Salem College, Wake Forest University and the Sawtooth Center for Visual Arts. In Washington, she said that she spent a lot of her time with St. Ann's Infant and Maternity home, a charity chartered by President Lincoln.

Currently, she is a member of the board of trustees of Women & Infants Hospital of Rhode Island, vice chairman of the board of directors the Metropolitan YMCA, and a member of the board of directors of the Development Foundation, John Hope Settlement House and the Newport International Film Festival. She is also a member of Lenoir-Rhyne's President's Society. "We have a very deep commitment to the communities we serve," she said about her bank. "It's been a wonderful opportunity to participate in the community service activities I love."

Kathy and Jack D'Arcy live in Providence, R.I. She still calls North Carolina home and they recently bought a vacation home in her hometown of Wilmington, N.C.

Tony Wolfe '70

Tony Wolfe '70, president and CEO of People's Bank, didn't originally plan to attend Lenoir-Rhyne College or become a banker.

Instead, he enrolled at Wingate University, which at the time was a two-year college. "I had planned to enter into YMCA work," he said.

But circumstance, or perhaps destiny, led him in a different direction. He first learned about Lenoir-Rhyne from John David Moose '59, also of Albemarle. At the time, Moose was trying to encourage Tony Wolfe's brother to play football for Lenoir-Rhyne. Through these contacts, Tony decided to transfer to L-R.

Thinking he would work for a YMCA, he earned a degree in sociology. But when he graduated, the Vietnam War was raging, and many employers were reluctant to hire a young man of draft age, thinking he might be called into service. However, Northwestern Bank apparently wasn't concerned and offered Wolfe his first job. Wolfe fulfilled his military obligation by serving in the Army Reserve.

He worked for Northwestern Bank for 16 years, leaving one year to work for South Carolina National Bank at Hilton Head. In 1986, he joined First Union National Bank in Hickory and in 1990 joined Peoples Bank as vice president for commercial lending. He was later promoted to senior vice president for commercial lending, and in 1993 was named president and CEO.

Since he came to Peoples Bank, it has grown from $150 million in assets and 100 employees to $600 million in assets and 200 employees. The bank has expanded into new markets and added five new locations during that time.

But what about his dream of working for the YMCA? He got a chance to do that, too, although in a volunteer capacity. He now serves on the Board of Directors of the Catawba Valley YMCA. He also serves on the L-R Board of Visitors.

Although he didn't take a traditional route into banking, Wolfe said he believes his education at L-R helped him a great deal by instilling in him a sense of self-discipline.

"I would say the professors demonstrated a genuine interest in the students — in wanting them to succeed," he said. "Through that experience, you learn about mentoring or managing an employee."

This example led Wolfe to develop his definition of leadership: helping others to succeed. Helping his customers and employees succeed has provided some of the most satisfying experiences of his career.

"For any company to be successful, it must have quality employees," he explained. "That's what the faculty at L-R did — helped the students succeed."

Jon Swift '76

As a college junior, Jon Swift '76 got a part-time job at Northwestern Bank to help pay his housing expenses. Little did he know what an impact that decision would have on his future. For two years, the business administration major took classes starting at 8 a.m. so he could spend the afternoons working the bank's peak business hours.

His hard work paid off when, after graduation, he became one of only 14 recent grads hired by the bank for its management training program. His first assignment was as a commercial lender in the Morganton office. He was then promoted to commercial banking officer and in 1984 to vice president and commercial banking manager. In 1985, Northwestern was acquired by First Union National Bank. Swift remained with the company, transferring to Rutherfordton in 1987 as city executive, and to Forest City in 1991 as area executive. In 1994, Swift returned to the Hickory office as middle market relationship manager. In this position, he was responsible for corporate clients with sales in excess of $20 million in Catawba County and the surrounding area. In 1997, he was named senior vice president and Catawba County marketing executive, a position he holds today.

Since he has remained with the same bank in the same geographical location most of his 25-year career, Swift has seen many businesses develop and thrive. "I loaned some of these businesses money when they first started in the '70s and '80s," he said. "It's been rewarding to see them grow."

He added, "Lenoir-Rhyne has always had good support from the business community. There are a lot of opportunities for graduates in the Hickory area." Obviously proud of his Bear heritage, Swift prominently displays Lenoir-Rhyne symbols in his office. Now he feels it is his turn to help his alma mater. He serves on the College's Business Council Board of Directors and is active with the Piedmont Educational Foundation. "It's been rewarding to help the College," he said.

Reid Pollard '77

When choosing a college, Reid Pollard '77 considered Lenoir-Rhyne's strong academic reputation, but the College's strong basketball program was the deciding factor.

However, Pollard was destined to make his mark in the world of banking, rather than on the basketball court. He played for the varsity basketball team two years before being sidelined with an injury.

He majored in economics and won the Economics Award as a senior. Pollard added electives in accounting, thinking they might be useful. He was right. After graduation, he was hired by North Carolina National Bank, which gave an accounting test to all job applicants. "I wouldn't be here today were it not for the strong accounting program run by Ray Strunk," Pollard said. "Mr. Strunk was tough, but he knew exactly what was needed in the business world."

Pollard became a commercial banker with NCNB, working in a variety of positions in Charlotte, Winston-Salem and Mooresville. In 1983, he went to work at Northwestern Bank of Asheville as a commercial banking officer. In 1985, he joined Randolph Bank and Trust in Asheboro as president. Today he also serves the bank as CEO.

Randolph Bank and Trust was one of 26 banks chartered in North Carolina in the 1970s. It is one of only two of that group that have survived. In fact, it has thrived, growing from two offices and $30 million in assets when Pollard joined the bank to five offices and $190 million in assets today.

Over the years, Pollard said he has enjoyed working with small businesses and seeing them succeed. He has also been heavily involved in the civic life of his community, serving as president of the Randolph Community College Foundation, treasurer of the local Chamber of Commerce, and as a volunteer with the United Way and YMCA. He has also served on the board of the N.C. Bankers Association and the Independent Bankers Association of America.

Pollard said his bank has succeeded in an era when many banks have come and gone by focusing on the basics: offering good customer service, cultivating new business and giving shareholders a good return on their investment.

Looking back on his college years, Pollard said he enjoyed the whole environment at Lenoir-Rhyne. However, the thing that he most enjoyed was "all the people I met and strong friendships I made."

Introducing Marya McCrae, Director of Planned Giving

Hello Alumni and Friends,

I am privileged to have joined Lenoir-Rhyne College as director of planned giving and am glad for the opportunity to introduce myself. I have more than 15 years of recruitment, development and management experience in education and non-profit settings.

Prior to joining the College staff, I worked as a planned giving specialist with the American Heart Association in St. Louis, Mo., creating a planned giving program for Missouri and Arkansas.

Before that time, I served as a planned giving counselor for Lutheran Hour Ministries in St. Louis and as the church grant program manager for Aid Association for Lutherans in Appleton, Wisc.

My other work experiences include serving as director of development, public relations and recruitment for Denver Lutheran High School; as an area manager of recruitment for my alma mater, Concordia University; as marketing coordinator of Wild Heerbrugg Systems/Prime Computer of Englewood, Colo.; and as the marketing/development assistant for KRMA TV, a PBS station in Denver, Colo. I hold an education degree from Concordia University in Seward, Neb.

On the personal side, I compose music, sing and play the piano. I am a poet and published author, and I am in the process of writing several novels. I love walking my two little Shih Tzus, decorating, creating basket flower arrangements, gourmet cooking, theater and the arts. I am also an avid collector of classic movies. I am moving here with my younger daughter, Melissa, a new college graduate, who is looking forward to beginning her own career.

The faculty, staff and board members have been so hospitable and friendly. They have made me feel right at home, even though I am a Northerner (or a least a Midwesterner). Lenoir-Rhyne is a wonderful institution, and I'm so excited about the prospect of visiting with alumni and friends who wish to support the College with a planned gift. I look forward to meeting and getting to know all of you. ■
